

Cameron to be in new district

Cameron Parish is expected to get a new state representative as the result of actions taken in the special 12-day session on reapportionment being held by the Louisiana Legislature.

Under the plan expected to be adopted Cameron Parish will become a part of Rep. Mickey Frith's 36th District which also includes Vermilion parish. Rep. Frith lives in Abbeville.

Cameron Parish during the past has been a part of the 36th district which included all of Cameron and a portion of South Lake Charles and the area south of Lake Charles.

Rep. Dan Flavin, who presently serves this district, will see his district shrunk to include only the present Calcasieu portion. The change was made necessary due to the growth of the area south of Lake Charles.

However, Cameron Parish will continue to be in the 25th Senatorial District which is served by Senator Jerry Theunissen of Jennings.

Senator Theunissen will see some minor changes in his district in Calcasieu and Acadia parishes, but there will be no changes in Cameron and Jeff Davis parishes.

Personnel changes are told here

The Cameron Parish School Board approved several personnel changes at its monthly meeting Monday.

Susan Canterbury was named a sweeper at South Cameron High School.

Sandra Mhire was named a food service technician at Hackberry High and Leona Bouillon was named a teacher aide at Cameron Elementary.

The resignation of William Langley as a sixth grade teacher at Johnson Bayou High School was accepted.

The board approved advertising a janitor's position at South Cameron High.

The Cameron Parish School Board Monday voted to call a special meeting for 9 a.m., Monday, Oct. 29 if the recall election of School Board Member Bill Morris is successful on Oct. 20.

According to law, the board has 10 days to name a person to fill the vacant seat if the recall is successful. If the board does not act during the 10 days, then the Governor selects someone.

If the recall election fails, the meeting will not be held.

Jones named to council

Jennifer Ann Jones of Cameron has been named to serve on the Louisiana Trial Lawyers Association's council of directors.

She is a member of the Jones & Jones Law Firm in Cameron.

Festival queens told

By GENEVA GRIFFITH

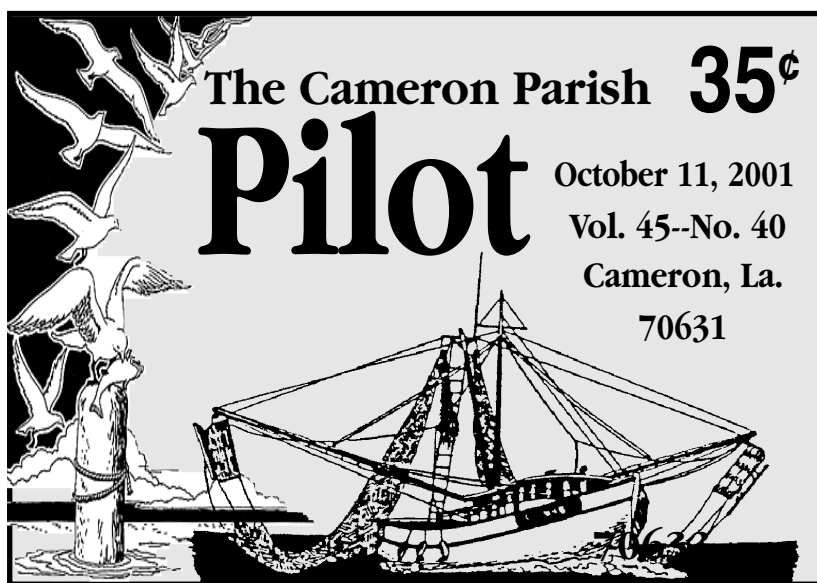

Each year the closing of the alligator season is observed at the annual Alligator Festival held at the Grand Chenier State park. This year the weather was beautiful with a cool breeze off the Gulf and sunshine all day.

The annual event, sponsored by the St. Eugene Catholic Church of Grand Chenier, started with the blessing of the fleet.

Orelia Abshire and Joyce Sturlese were crowned as the queens of the 2001 festival.

Port Board lease is given approval

The West Cameron Port commissioners voted unanimously at a meeting in Holly Beach to grant a lease to two Cameron attorneys on 159.36 acres of port owned property on the Calcasieu ship channel at Cameron.

Under the terms of the lease attorneys Chadd Mudd and David Bruchhaus, owners of Gulf Coast Development Corp., agreed to clean the land at an approximate cost of $50,000 and to seek industrial development on the property.

Under the lease, the corporation will pay no lease fee for the first five years. For the next 25 years they agree to pay the port a commission of 5.01 percent of the net profits generated by businesses operating there or no less than $5,000 per year.

The Holly Beach meeting had been advertised as a hearing for anyone who wished to oppose the lease. The only opposition received was in a form of a letter from Rep. Dan Flavin, who urged the board to take no action since a bridge to Monkey Island is being planned. More than half of the property is on Monkey Island. The rest is on the west side of the ship channel.

Several police jurors who were present at the meeting expressed their support for the lease. Assistant District Attorney Cecil Sanner stated: "We think this is a good project and meets legal requirements."

The board then voted to finalize the lease with the two attorneys.

Attorney Mudd said the property on the west side of the channel adjoins property owned by his family and by putting the two pieces of property together there will be enough land to attack development.

Elections set

Voters in two Cameron Parish districts will vote on separate propositions in special election on Saturday, Oct. 20.

In School District 5 voters will vote on a $3.2 bond issue to make improvements to Johnson Bayou High School.

In School District 4 voters will vote on a proposition to recall School Board member Bill Morris.

This was followed by a full day of activities, including recognizing the largest alligator caught during the season, Little Miss and Mr. contests, a Cajun dance with the "Calcasieu Cajuns" playing.

Lunch was provided by the church members consisting of crabs and chicken, and prepared on pits under the ancient oaks on the property.

Spectators and participants used the newly refurbished wharf as the boat races were held on the Mermentau River.

another matter, said he had learned of 260 acres that had been used as a spoil dump by the state in past years that the commission might be able to secure as a gift from the state.

He said the property was located near the road being built to the Sabine Lighthouse site which would make it accessible for development.

The commissioners agreed to seek a donation of the property.

The next meeting of the commission was set for Oct. 30 at the Hackberry Recreation Center.

Funds are sought for bridge here

The Louisiana Congressional delegation is currently in the process of securing $100,000 needed by the Coast Guard to complete the transaction for the Monkey Island bridge, State Rep. Dan Flavin wrote in a letter to the West Cameron Port Commission last week.

"As soon as this funding has been secured the Department of Transportation and Development is ready to proceed with the work on the bridge," Rep. Flavin wrote.

The state announced plans about a year ago to close down the ferry to Monkey Island at Cameron due to high cost and the relatively number of persons living on the island.

At that time, Rep. Flavin was able to get the state to postpone action for two years to see if a bridge could be built to replace the ferry.

State funds were available to build a low level fixed span bridge, but some Cameron interests have been holding out for a moveable span bridge which they say will not interfere with boat traffic as much as the fixed span.

In his letter, Rep. Flavin opposed the proposed lease of 159.36 acres of port-owned land on the ship channel at this time.

"I am aware there has been no interest in this property for years," Flavin wrote. "However, now is not the time to proceed with a lease such as this due to the fact that a flat level bridge to the Monkey Island property will soon become a reality. Once this bridge is completed, you will see people lined up with an interest in developing the property. The West Cameron Port Commission, being a government agency, can afford to wait until this bridge is completed and then weigh all available options."

Rep. Flavin was the only person who expressed opposition to the lease and the Port commissioners voted to finalize the contract.

SCHOOL BOARD ACTION

Large classes to be split at 25 mark

By GENEVA GRIFFITH

The Cameron Parish School Board established a new policy concerning kindergarten through third grade classes at its monthly meeting Monday. The board agreed to split any such class when it reaches 25 students.

Parents Cindy Little and Mrs. Larry Eagleson spoke to the board about adding another third grade class to their school, which now has two classes with 25 pupils each.

Board President Pat Howerton agreed that the classes should be split into three, instead of the present one.

Judith Jones, superintendent, said the board should also consider the other schools in the parish.

The women said that K-3 are the critical grades and if the student doesn't get the fundamentals up to that time they will have a very hard time when passing to the other grades.

President Howerton said he is a believer in smaller classes so teachers can spend more time with each child.

After listening to all concerning, including the mothers from Grand Lake, the board voted to split the classes at 25, for all schools in the parish.

Hero of Calcasieu Pass battle to be honored with a marker

At daylight of May 6, 1864, residents of the little town of Leesburg (now Cameron) were awakened by the boom of cannonading, and occasionally a cannonball would strike the roof of a house. For several days two Federal gunboats, the Wave and Granite City, had been at anchor in Calcasieu River in front of Duncan Smith's home.

The battle began when the entire Confederate garrison of Sabine Pass opened fire on the gunboats. Leading the Rebel attack was Creuzbauer's Battery of four 6-pound and 12-pound howitzers, and the cannoneers were mostly German immigrants from Fayette County, Texas, many of whom spoke no English.

The No. 1 Confederate gun, a 12-pound battery commanded by Corp. Walter von Rosenberg, became the first casualty as soon as the gunboats returned their fire. A 24-pound Union shell hit the gun and exploded, killing Private William Kniep instantly and gravely wounding Private William Guehrs, with a shrapnel wound in his thigh.

Guehrs was offered the chance to leave the battle scene and report to the medical wagon, but he refused. Instead he fastened a belt around his thigh as a tourniquet; then he continued by swabbing out his gun barrel as needed, and reloading the No. 2 gun throughout the 90-minute battle. Much of the time he had to get around on his knees, but not once did he leave the scene of duty.

At first it was believed that Guehrs' wound was not mortal since no artery was severed; and for a few days it appeared that his wound was healing. After Guehrs was discharged, another soldier was detailed to accompany him home. They were evacuated to Beaumont, and after 3 weeks of travel by wagon and train, Guehrs arrived back at his home in Waldeck, a tiny German community in Fayette County. Unknown to Guehrs, his commanding officer, Capt. Charles Welhausen, recommended to the Confederate Congress that the wounded cannoneer be cited for valor under fire and be awarded the Medal of Honor for his bravery at the Battle of Calcasieu Pass. The medal was finally given to Guehrs' family a year after his death.

After returning home, Guehrs wound refused to heal, continued draining and became infected, and eventually he was stricken with gangrene and died. His remains were buried in the Waldeck Cemetery, and undoubtedly would have lain there in total anonymity and forgotten until Greg Clemmer of Virginia published his book, "Valor in Gray," in 1996, with his long account of Guehrs' bravery during the battle.

At that time the Fayette County Sons of Confederate Veterans realized that a genuine hero lay unrecognized in their midst, so they began to raise funds for an appropriate marker

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to send out our deepest heartfelt thanks to all the people of Grand Chenier, Creole, Cameron and all the local and distant communities who have given so generously of their time, gifts, talents, works and prayers to help during this emotionally difficult and physically stressful time when our daughter Carissa was accidentally burned on April 29th of this year at which time she was only 4 months old.

The long hours we spent at local and out-of-town hospitals was draining, but we never tired, thanks to the prayers, strength and support we received from heaven and from all you wonderful people. The tremendous outpouring of assistance was overwhelming to us and our family, who are relative newcomers to this area. Your love and concern was comforting and totally unexpected. We were in awe at how much care was given to our children while we were away from home.

Once we got home the tedious and heart-wrenching hours of unwrapping bandages, bathing, rubbing on medicinal creams, rewrapping gauze, enduring tears, giving gently hugs and kisses became easier and less painful for her and for us each day as we watched her miraculous recovery.

Then in August, the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion Post 364 put together a benefit to help us pay Carissa's medical expenses and again a huge wave of love and sacrifice came washing over Grand Chenier and took everyone by surprise.

Thanks to the Auxiliary and the Knights of Columbus, who opened the bank account in Carissa's name, all expenses, to date, have been paid in full!!! Praise be to Almighty God!!! Saying Thank You with every breath we take everyday for all eternity would never be enough to let all of you know, from the bottom of our hearts, how much we have appreciated all you have done.

So the only way we can be assured that all of you will be thanked appropriately and personally is through this media and by praying that God will send down a blessing upon each and everyone of you who have helped us even in the smallest way. "May God's unending love, mercy, protection, and blessings be poured out upon you and your family now and forever, Amen!"

We are very happy to be a part of such a closeknit community and hope someday, somehow by giving from our hearts we can repay you for all you have done for us. If you know of someone who has been a helper in any way, please pass this message and prayer on to them.

Thank you!

 The following proclamation was offered by Mrs. Pinch, seconded by Mr. Steve Trahan and declared duly adopted:

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, in the last decade, children being raised by grandparents nationally have seen a staggering growth. According to AARP, approximately 3.4 million children under the age of 18 currently live with their grandparents; and

Whereas, having grandchildren can be a time of great joy; raising them can be a time of great stress, major upheaval, and family conflict; and

Whereas, grandparent caregivers may be subjected to many legal and social challenges. They often lack support and respite services. Housing and medical expenses may be constant worries. Many face financial hardships. Social isolation and fatigue can add to the problem; and

Whereas, grandparents who accept the role of surrogate parents are from all walks of life. There are no economic or social boundaries; and

Whereas, grandparents are raising their grandchildren because of teenage pregnancy, substance abuse, death, divorce, parental joblessness, incarceration, neglect, child abuse, abandonment and AIDS; and

Whereas, grandparents need readily available resources that will help them overcome financial and social barriers. The following types of available resources needed are: support groups, kinship care services, the right to make medical decisions for a child in their care either at home or at school, and legal assistance.

Now, therefore, the Cameron Parish Police Jury does hereby proclaim the week of September 2-8, 2001, as

GRANDPARENTS WEEK in the Parish of Cameron, and urge all citizens of Cameron Parish to join in recognizing the many contributions grandparents make to the growth of our children.

Tarpons beat Trojans; tied for first place

By CHRIS MUELLER

The South Cameron Tarpons storybook season continued last Thursday night as they beat the East Beauregard Trojans 28-12 in a key district matchup. South Cameron moves to 6-0 (3-0) on the season. The Tarpons are tied with St. Edmund's of Eunice for first place in District 5-1A, both with 3-0 records.

The Tarpons jumped out to a 21-0 lead and never looked back as they started with excellent field position on every drive in the first half. The Tarpons continue to get stronger as the season goes on. Always a strong running team with the likes of Donnie January, the Tarpons are proving they can pass as well. Tarpon quarterback Brett Baccigalopi connected with his favorite receiver, Jeffrey Deshields three times for 48 yards with all three being touchdowns.

Deshields scored on touchdown passes of 11, 5, and 32 yards. Baccigalopi scored the Tarpons other touchdown on a 31 yard run. Baccigalopi ended up 7 for 14 for 85 yards and he rushed for another 47 yards giving opposing teams something else they will have to worry about in future games. Donald January, the Tarpon tailback, had another excellent night rushing for 156 yards on 30 carries helping to set up the Tarpon touchdowns with his strong running.

The Tarpon defense held the Trojans to just 39 yards rushing

The United Nations

This month, the United Nations will celebrate a birthday. The organization was developed in 1945 by 51 countries. Today, 188 countries belong to the United Nations.

The United Nations is not a world government and does not make laws. It was set up for four purposes: to keep international peace and security, to develop friendly relations among nations, to solve international problems and promote respect for human rights and to help unify the actions of nations.

Throughout the world, the United Nations works to clear land mines, improve drinking water, help countries produce more food and loan money to developing countries.

There are six parts to the United Nations:

The General Assembly is a group of nations that meets yearly to work on the world's worst problems.

The Security Council is responsible for keeping peace in the world.

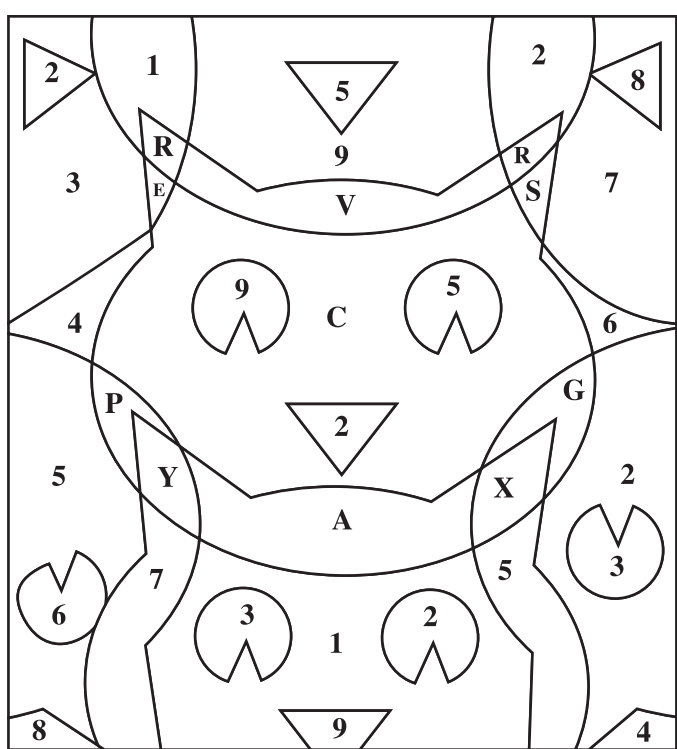

The Economic and Social Council is under the authority of the General Assembly, and it takes care of the economic and social work.

The Trusteeship Council supervises and helps areas around the world that want to govern themselves.

The International Court of Justice has 15 judges that help work out disputes between countries.

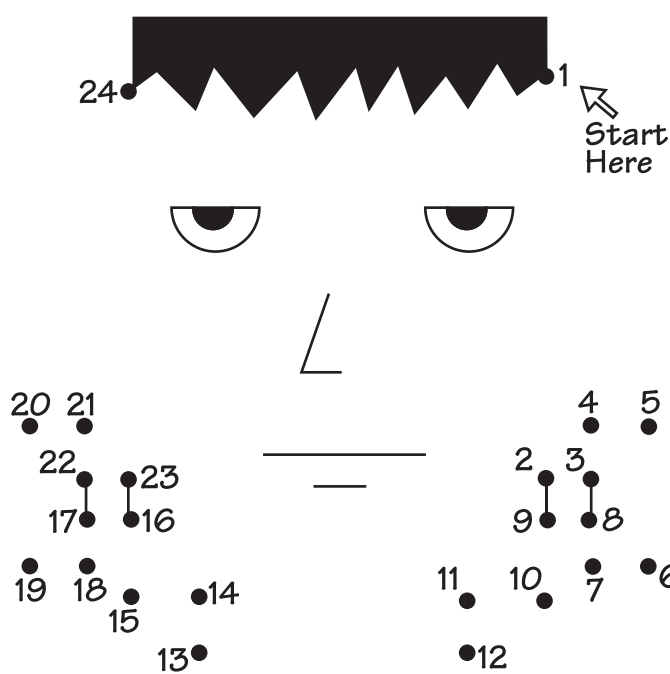

The Secretariat takes care of the day-to-day functions of the United Nations and has about 8,700 employees around the world.

So You Want to Be...

When you combine music with movement, you find dancing. There are different types of dancers, but one thing is the same: They all bring ideas, stories and sound to life with the movement of their bodies.

Dancers perform in ballet, musical shows, opera, ads, television, movies and music videos. They perform modern, folk, ethnic, tap and jazz dances, and many of them sing and act.

Although most dancers work as a group, some dance alone, some teach dance and some choreograph dances. Choreographers create new dances or develop new ways to use older dances.

Even though it may look fun, dancing is actually hard work. Because most of the shows dancers are in take place at night, they work late hours, then practice and have long rehearsals during the day. Many times they have to rehearse and practice on weekends and holidays. If a show they are performing in goes on the road, they have to travel, too.

Most dancers don't have dancing jobs all the time, so they find work in other places, such as restaurants or dance studios. And because of the hard work, long rehearsals and long hours, most dancers stop working by the time they are in their late 30s. Some become dance teachers and coaches when they retire.

Dancers must be in good shape. Their training begins in ballet, usually with private teachers, when they are between 5 to 8. Girls usually start training earlier than boys. If dancers are good when they get into their early teens, they get more advanced training. By the time they are 17 or 18, most have a professional audition.
